Tishman COO to head construction trade group

August 12, 2010 04:00PM

Jay Badame

Jay Badame, the president and COO of Tishman Construction of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, has been named the new chairperson of the Regional Alliance for Small Contractors, a trade group aimed at promoting the growth of small, minority- and women-owned construction companies. Badame said that he plans to help "foster employment" and spur "competition within the construction industry" in his role with the New York City-based group. While Badame is new to the role, he's not the first Tishman exec to hold office with the organization -- former chairman of Tishman Construction John Tishman was a founding member of the group. TRD
